

I urge you not to weaken NJ's Do Not Call law. I do not like unsolicited calls from telemarketers. First of all, they often come at inopportune moments. Secondly, they never offer any merchandise I'm interested in. If I want an item, I'll contact the company in question. Thirdly, telemarketing can be used by unscrupulous individuals to steal someone's identity, or by burglars to find out if someone is not home. In short, the Do Not Call law does a world of good for New Jersey's residents.
